

Lincolnshire Police ✓

MARCH 1, 2022 2:02 PM THIS STORY IS OVER 22 MONTHS OLD 🔒

Chief Constable Chris Haward: ‘Policing by consent has to begin inside the organisation’

We’ve been proud to support and celebrate LGBT History Month throughout February.

Lincolnshire Police Chief Constable Chris Haward. Photo: Steve Smailes

Oral statement to Parliament

Riots: Theresa May's speech on 11 August 2011

The Home Secretary, Theresa May, gave this speech to the House of Commons on 11 August 2011. This version is as spoken.

From: Home Office and The Rt Hon Theresa May MP
Published 11 August 2011

This was published under the 2010 to 2015 Conservative and Liberal Democrat coalition government

Delivered on: 11 August 2011

Related content

Counter terrorism and security powers review: statement by Theresa May www.gov.uk/government/speeches/riots-theresa-mays-speech-on-11-august-2011 stop them using baton rounds if they judged it necessary. We put the water cannon stationed in Northern Ireland on standby to be deployed within 24 hours. The police made it clear to me that they did not want to use them. And, as things stand, what is working is officers on the streets, robust policing and the help and support of local communities - which we would jeopardise if we rushed to use things like rubber bullets.

Policing by consent is the British way. But the police will only retain the confidence of the wider community if they are seen to take clear and robust action in the face of open criminality.

In Focus

Police and crime commissioners: Powers and functions

Published Monday, 24 October, 2022

In Focus

Crime

Government

 Nicole Winchester

Since 2012, directly elected politicians called police and crime commissioners (PCCs) have been responsible for the non-political aspects of policing in most forces in England and Wales. In July 2020, the government announced a two-part review of PCCs. This article provides background information on the responsibilities held by PCCs and summarises the findings of the government's review.

About

Theresa has served as Member of Parliament for Maidenhead since 1997 and has held several positions within Parliament since. She was a member of the Shadow Cabinet from 1999 to 2010, and from 2002 to 2003 was the European Affairs Unit and Senior Adviser on International Affairs.

Theresa has been involved in politics at all levels for many years, starting out stuffing envelopes at her local Conservative Association before going on to be a councillor in the London Borough of Merton from 1986 to 1994. During that time she was Chairman of Education between 1988 and 1990 and Deputy Group Leader and Housing Spokesman between 1992 and 1994.

Theresa was elected Member of Parliament for Maidenhead in May 1997. She lives in the constituency and is an active local campaigner. Her local activity has included campaigns to improve the local train service, bring a minor injuries unit to St Marks Hospital, and improve Maidenhead town centre.

She has held several positions within Parliament since 1997. She was a member of the Shadow Cabinet from 1999 to 2010, and from 2002 to 2003 was the first female Chairman of the Conservative Party.